Railean Distillers Breaks Ground for Distillery

TEXAS, April 2, 2006 – Railean Distillers, LLC today announced that it has broken ground to build Texas' first rum distillery. The Railean Family Distillery will be located in San Leon, Texas approximately 25 miles southeast of the Houston Metropolitan area. The tract of land chosen for the distillery allows for future expansions beyond 100,000 cases of production per year.

“If there was ever going to be a rum distillery in Texas, it was destined to be located in the coastal town of San Leon”, said Kelly Railean President and CEO of Railean Distillers, LLC. “San Leon was once a stronghold for the swashbuckling pirate Jean Lafitte. Everyone knows that Lafitte’s treasure was never found and the locals still believe it could be buried right here in San Leon. We love San Leon, it is a small community of modern day pirates, fishermen, sailors, and wild parrots. The only thing missing was the rum.”
